Enmeiji temple / 250-kilogram bomb at Enmeiji Temple

A fragment of a 250-kilogram bomb that fell near Musashino University is on display.

Green Park path

During World War Two, this walking path was used as a railway (service line from Sakai Station) to transport equipment to Nakajima Aircraft Company, but after the war it was converted into Green Park Stadium, and the line was used to carry spectators from Mitaka Station.

Musashino-Chuo Park

The entire area was the site of one of Japan's largest military factories, the Musashino Plant of Nakajima Aircraft Company. The factory manufactured engines for the Mitsubishi "Zero" fighter plane, so it was an important target of bombing by the American military. It was bombed nine times before the end of the war, and the number of casualties from employees alone was 200.
